

Brinker Capital Market Barometer

SEPTEMBER 2022

Global equities continued their rebound in early August until met by strong technical resistance levels in thin, late-summer trading. There was not a Federal Reserve FOMC meeting in August, but that did not stop Fed officials from reiterating a tough stance towards inflation at the annual Jackson Hole policy forum. Despite data releases throughout the month showing some indications of cooling prices, FOMC Chair Jerome Powell confirmed the central bank's commitment to 2% inflation. Treasury yields moved higher across the yield curve, and the U.S. Dollar continues to show strength. Volatility will likely remain a factor across asset classes until market participants find more clarity on monetary policy and mid-term elections.

SHORT-TERM FACTORS (< 6 months)

	CHANGE	NEGATIVE	NEUTRAL	POSITIVE
Momentum		●			Even after July rally, most global equity markets are still exhibiting technical weakness
Trend		●			Major indices are well off their lows, but failed to break above long-term moving averages
Investor sentiment				●	Surveys continue to show significantly more bears than bulls; tends to be a contrarian signal
Seasonality		●			Markets in midst of seasonally-weak period; more pronounced in midterm election years

INTERMEDIATE-TERM FACTORS (6-36 months)

	CHANGE	NEGATIVE	NEUTRAL	POSITIVE
Fiscal policy			●		Total impact of recently passed Inflation Reduction Act unclear; deficit continues to shrink
Monetary policy			●		Fed has stated their intention to make policy more restrictive; low real yields supportive
Inflation		●			Headline inflation has moderated, but y/y numbers are still at very elevated levels
Interest rate environment			●		Curve remains inverted despite shift higher in August; absolute level of rates still modest
Macroeconomic			●		Labor market healthy and consumer resilient but wide array of economic data is decelerating
Business sentiment		●			Business confidence measures remain subdued with elevated inflation as a primary driver
Consumer sentiment		●			Consumer sentiment decidedly pessimistic; expectations over next 6-12 months deteriorating
Corporate earnings				●	Second quarter earnings were generally better than expected; we continue to monitor input costs
Credit environment				●	Credit spreads have recently widened but remain tight relative to long-term averages

LONG-TERM FACTORS (36+ months)

	CHANGE	NEGATIVE	NEUTRAL	POSITIVE
Valuation			●		U.S. equity valuations near long-term averages; overseas markets below average valuations
Business cycle			●		Decelerating GDP growth and negative LEI increasing the potential for shallow recession
Demographics			●		Emerging markets possess more favorable trends overall than developed markets

SUMMARY

Short-term factors were unchanged from the prior month as global equities failed to clear long-term moving averages, seasonality remains a headwind, and investor sentiment hovers at depressed levels.

Intermediate-term factors were unchanged from last month as there are signs inflation is cooling somewhat, but not enough for the Fed to change their stated course of policy action.

Long-term factors remain neutral and are unchanged from the previous month.
